ABOUT US

A Legacy Since 1765

Danapur Cantonment

Known as the 'City of Grains' and 'City of Sages', Danapur is among the oldest cantonments in India, established by Lord Robert Clive in 1765 on the banks of the Ganges.

Post the Battle of Buxar, the Bengal Army was reorganised, and three cantonments were raised on 05 Aug 1765 at Munger, Allahabad and Bankipore — Bankipore alone has remained continuously active, relocating to Danapur in 1767.

Today, Danapur is a hub for meaningful welfare activities serving veterans and veeranganas of Bihar & Jharkhand.

Strategic Location

Chosen for its inland water route to Calcutta via the Ganges — a key staging point for troops and logistics to the NWFP.

Wartime Role

Served as an administrative base for British Expeditionary Forces in WWII; nicknamed 'Little England' for its greenery and heritage churches.

1857 Legacy

On 25 Jul 1857, sepoys at Danapur mutinied against the British, influencing the First War of Independence across Eastern UP, Bengal & Orissa.
